The following is a pictorial display of the aquatic plants that were identified in a survey of Eagle Lake conducted by Darrin Freshwater Institute. The survey looked at data from 1932, 1989, and 1998. The following lists all of the plants identified in the report that followed the survey. (Potamogeton Alpinus was also identified by Tim Sinnot of the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation as being present in Eagle Lake as of Feb. 2006)
